

MOREE SHOW

Time to get creative

IT is time to get busy and be creative with the Moree Show only about a week away.

Everyone should be putting the finishing touches to their exhibits or preparing their secret recipes to showcase in the pavilion section of the show.

There is certainly something for everyone with categories like needlework, art, photography, produce, cooking and more.

Stewardess Ros O'Neill said the photography section was very popular last year and the junior sections were also popular each year.

Schools are getting involved and groups can also take a chance at winning a prize with the group competitive exhibit.

Mrs O'Neill said no year was ever the same with some categories proving more popular in one year and another the next.

"There is lots for people to enter in; we just hope everyone has been busy."

There were a few local lads who tried their luck at cooking last year but this year it seems they have turned to produce and trying to grow big pumpkins.

There have also been some changes to some categories this year with extended classes like a sculpture section in the arts category.

To find out more about the rules and changes get your hands on a show schedule that has been distributed around town otherwise contact Ros O'Neill on 6751 1234 for more information.

All entries are to be taken to the pavilions between 9am and 11am on Friday, April 24. They are to be collected on the following Monday, April 27, from 9am or from the secretary's office during the week.

Angela McCormack looking at some of the photographs entered in last year's show.

260408Pavillions 012